Our journal has an established routine of rotating the editorial board so that each year the member who has served four years steps down. This volume marks the first one after Eric Monteiro stepped down as the coordinating editor. We are grateful for the very valuable service he did for the journal and the community and we look forward to work with Bjørn Erik as the new Norwegian representative. At the same time Ola Henfridsson takes over as the new coordinating editor.

This number is a special issue on E-Government in Scandinavia, edited by Kim Viborg Andersen, Åke Grönlund, Carl Erik Moe and Maung K. Sein. The volume contains five papers on this very timely topic. We thank the guest editors and the production team for their great efforts in making this issue possible.

This volume continues the tradition of publishing special issues of the journal focusing on current topics in Scandinavian IS research. We are encouraging prospective guest editors to submit proposals for future special issues. Please see the website <http://www.e-sjis.org> for guidelines on proposing and developing a special issue.
